THE ELEPHANT MAN

A poignant yet tragic tale of a deformed man rejected by society during Victorian England.

Seen as a freak in a circus sideshow, the 'Elephant Man' is John Merrick, the grotesquely deformed man who was 'rescued' by Frederic Treves, an eminent physician, who tried to help Merrick, but only succeeded in making him another type of sideshow — this time for the pseudo humanitarians, the bourgeois genteel generation.

TheatreWorks is proud to announce an additional event to its 1987-88 season of plays — THE ELEPHANT MAN, in conjunction with the 1987 Drama Festival organised by the Ministry of Community Development.

THE ELEPHANT MAN — a theatrical tour de force, no one should miss.
